VILLA KEEPS U.S. IN HOT WATER

Feared Seizure of Foreigners' Property Will Provoke Row With Nations

CARRANZA ALSO WORKED UP BY BANDIT LEADER

Sends Envoy to Expostulate—Battle Near Ojinaga is Now Imminent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Gen. Pancho Villa's behavior is causing intense anxiety here. The report that he has hanged Luis Terrazas, the son of the Sonora millionaire, is still neither denied nor confirmed. Secretary of State Bryan refused to state whether he had received a reply to his message to American Consul Fletcher at Chihuahua for information. The fact that Terrazas was dragged from the British consulate might cause international complications if he has been killed. His death if it took place, followed a demand from General Villa made yesterday on General Luis Terrazas at El Paso, Tex., for the payment of $500,000 for ransom for his son Luis, held prisoner at Chihuahua City, with threat of execution of money was not forthcoming.

It is reliably reported that a dozen wealthy German residents of Chihuahua are also held for ransom. They are charged with having given financial aid to the federalists. Otto Kueck, German consul at Chihuahua, is reported to have been condemned to be executed within 24 hours unless $50,000 ransom is paid.

Germans in El Paso have appealed to Washington for immediate action to prevent threats being carried out.

Rebels Withdraw From Tampico
Although the rebels have withdrawn from the immediate vicinity of Tampico, according to a wireless message from Admiral Fletcher, it is believed that the plan is to renew the attack when the rebels receive new supplies of ammunition and can bring more artillery from Victoria. Before departing the rebels cut the city's water supply.

Although the liner Moro Castle has arrived at Tampico, wireless messages report that heavy seas still prevent the transfer of refugees from the other boats and warships. The Mexican gunboats Bravo, Vera Cruz, Tampico and Zaragoza remained in the harbor to await the expected return of the rebels.

REPORTED LOAN OF $20,000,000 TO MEXICO NOT CREDITED

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15.—El Imperial, a Huertista newspaper, says today: "We are able to state today that English bankers have loaned $20,000,000 to the Mexican government."

Foreigners here believe the article was inspired by Gen. Huerta, and place little credence in the report. Louis Baird, an English mining engineer, is a prisoner of bandits in Jalisco state, being held for 30,000 pesos ransom under penalty of being shot.

Apparently to show his democracy, Provisional President Huerta, clad in a battered felt hat, brown overcoat, greasy old trousers and unpolished shoes, walked from his residence to the palace today. He was theoretically unattended, but a bodyguard was close behind. Senora Huerta, reported to have left the city, was seen on the streets Saturday.

Congress Adjourns Tonight

For the purpose of proving that a plot against Gen. Huerta existed among members of the congress that the dictator recently dissolved, a local judge began reading in open court today letters seized by the authorities addressed to 100 imprisoned members of the late congress. The present congress is scheduled to adjourn tonight to April 1.

CARRANZA SEEKS TO HALT VILLA'S RECKLESS ACTS

EL PASO, Dec. 15.—That Gen. Carranza realizes that Gen. Villa will cause a reversal of American sentiment unless he abandons his attitude toward Europeans, was indicated today by the departure of Carranza's confidential agent, Felix Summerfield, for Gen. Villa's headquarters. It is understood he will demand in Gen. Carranza's name that Villa restore all property confiscated from foreigners, regardless of their nationality. If he refuses, Carranza himself will go to Chihuahua, so it is stated.

FIGHT EXPECTED AT LAMULIA—REFUGEES TELL OF OUTRAGES

Fighting between federalists and rebels at Lamulia, fifteen miles south of Ojinaga, where the federal garrison of Chihuahua took refuge following their flight, is reported imminent. The federalists moved out from Ojinaga to Lamulia where they prepared fortifications, evidently expecting a fight.

Lincoln Statue To Be Given to Norway, July 4

ABERCROMBIE, N. D., Dec. 15.—Final preparations were made at a meeting held here today by Norwegians of this section for the pilgrimage which is to be made next June to Norway, where a statue of Lincoln will be presented to the Norwegian government by the residents of North Dakota. The statue was voted at the last legislative session.

Governor Hanna and his staff in resplendent uniforms, and hundreds of Norwegians from the northwest will join in the pilgrimage and be present at the presentation of the statue July 4th. The occasion is to be made the most patriotic affair of the year in Norway. While the governor has no idea of commercialism in making the trip, it is believed his presence will have the effect of bringing more sturdy Norwegians to the northwest.

LABOR RESTLESS IN OLD ENGLAND

Million Work Days Lost in 1913 by 960 Strikes and Lock-outs in Empire

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The increasing industrial unrest in England is graphically shown in a special report issued today by the Board of Trade. More than a million working days have been lost by workmen throughout the country since the first of the year on account of strikes and lockouts, of which there have been 960, a greater number than during the whole of any preceding year in the past decade. Demands for higher wages were responsible for 86 per cent of the disputes in the past year, and questions of trade union principles for 10 per cent. In an unusually high proportion of cases—75 per cent—the employees obtained their demands, and the number of settlements by arbitration, or mediation, was the highest on record.

PRESIDENT'S HEALTH BETTER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—President Wilson's health is improved today. His fever is gone and he left his bed. He had cancelled all engagements but transacted some business at the White House.

General Mercado who led the retreat is commanding.

One hundred more civilian refugees from Chihuahua arrived today. They told harrowing tales of the depredations of Gen. Villa's troops there, including indiscriminate looting. Many women have been seized and held for ransom. The latest arrivals discounted the reports of the execution of Luis Terrazas. The latest accounts say the rebels demand half a million ransom for Terrazas.

AMERICAN SHIPS AID SUFFERING AT TAMPICO

VERA CRUZ, Dec. 15.—American warships are supplying food and water to hundreds of refugees at Tampico. The rebels are reported as preparing to return to the attack, possibly tomorrow. A storm is hampering relief work. The transport Sumner has arrived with food and medicines, and many American surgeons from the ships are caring for the wounded ashore. The casualties of the fighting are still unknown.

SPLENDID BANK BUILDING IS PLANNED

Drawings for Handsome Sky-scraper Have Been Completed

FIVE STORIES IN THE BIG STRUCTURE

Farmers and Merchants Bank to Occupy Ground Floor

Plans for the splendid fireproof building to be erected in this city by the Farmers and Merchants' National Bank are now being completed by T. Beverly Klein, Jr. & Company, architectural engineers, of Los Angeles. The structure, which is to be the tallest and most modern building yet projected in Santa Ana, will cost approximately $120,000, exclusive of furnishings and fixtures, and will be started early next year.

Construction will commence probably between sixty and ninety days hence. It is understood that the bank, the corner of Third and Main, a new Smith building to be put up at the corner of Third and Main.

The new financial house will occupy the site of the present Farmers and Merchants' National Bank at Fourth and Main, a small brick structure which is to be razed to make way for the larger and more up-to-date improvement. The corner is 50x100 feet in size. The new bank will be of steel frame construction and five stories in height above a basement. The building will contain fifty-six offices on the four upper floors and these are to be as modern as arranged and appointed as any in Los Angeles.

Among the modern conveniences to be provided will be vacuum cleaning, a hot water circulating system, steam heat, built-in lavatories and elevator service. The office entrance will be on Main street and will be handsomely finished in marble and tile. The bank will have entrances on both street frontages.

The structure will be faced with brick and terra cotta, the base being of granite. Architecturally it will follow classic lines. The quarters of the bank will be richly finished and appointed. Fireproof vaults are to be built in both the bank proper and the basement.

The bank officials believe that Santa Ana has reached a point in its advance where it can consider itself a city and are determined to make the projected building a credit to this place and to Orange county. Those directly in charge of the enterprise are W. A. Huff and J. A. Turner, president and cashier, respectively, of the institution.

TEACHERS MEET TO HEAR ABLE SPEAKERS

County Institute is Being Held at Intermediate School Here

UNIVERSITY MAN MORNING LEADER

Address to be Delivered Tonight by Professor from Wisconsin

Today the annual institute of the teachers of Orange county was begun at the intermediate school, and will continue until Wednesday noon, after which the teachers of this county will join in the Southern California Teachers Institute to be held in Los Angeles. The only night session will be tonight when Prof. M. V. O'Shea of the University of Wisconsin will deliver an address.

This morning County Superintendent S. P. Atchell called the institute to order, with Mrs. Louise H. Bradshaw as secretary. Following invocation by Rev. Staff of Santa Ana, a delightful playlet by four second grade pupils captivated the teachers. The subject was "The Three Bears," set to music. A male quartet from El Modena entertained the audience. Rev. Staff then gave an informal address.

Miss Crum of Berkeley outlined the university extension work, showing that about 500 pupils are now taking extension courses. She offered to make arrangements for a course of six lectures here by Dr. Ritter of the University of California on "From Superstition to Understanding of the Sea and Its Life" and "How the Pacific Ocean Affects California." The cost will be $125. The superintendent said that probably the county could arrange for these lectures to be given.

Mitchell gave an outline of the provisions of the teacher's pension law. The principal address of the morning was that of Dr. Richard G. Boone of the University of California on "The Educational Meanings of Industrial Education."

"Industrial education," said he, "includes all things that people do, including the element of skill. It is one thing to know, and another to do. Knowledge is not power until applied to what we do. The aim of industrial education is not how to work but to stir up the desire to work, to do well the thing that one is engaged upon, and to be able to do other things as well. No one is educated who cannot do more than the thing he is at. Education is worth nothing except the thought that is mixed in with it, and learning is not worth while that does not work into our lives."

"Bring real problems into every subject taught. For instance, give a child the problem of supplying the needs of a family on an income of $75 a month."

This afternoon the teachers are divided into two sections, one for primary and grammar school teachers and the other for high school teachers. In each section helpful addresses are being given by able speakers.

U. S. TENTS FOR USE OF 500 UNEMPLOYED

Leo Weil is said to have been vainly trying for months to get into communication with him.

MRS. PANKHURST NOW ON "NO SLEEP" STRIKE

Is in Serious Condition--Militants Appeal to King--American Suffragists Hostile to Democrats

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst has added a no-sleep strike to the hunger and thirst strike, which she inaugurated last Saturday when she was arrested on her return from Paris. She walks continuously to prevent falling asleep. Her condition is reported as being already serious. The suffrage militants continued their refusal for her arrest by deeds of arson on Sunday and today. One arson squad burned a mansion near Bristol, another smashed all the windows in Richmond police station and the Fox lumber plant and several buildings at Devonport were burned. A nearby placard read: "Revenge for Mrs. Pankhurst." The loss was $300,000.

Sylvia Pankhurst was released today from prison after a hunger and thirst strike, under the "cat and mouse" act. Her condition is reported as being a miserable one. One of the militant suffragettes, Mrs. Pankhurst, is being done to death. Suffragette leaders, on behalf of

Mrs. Pankhurst, today sent the following telegram to King George: "In your majesty's name a noble woman is being done to death. We call upon your majesty to stop this crime before it is too late."

AMERICAN SUFFRAGISTS HOSTILE TO DEMOCRACY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—That the National Women's Suffrage Association will do all in its power to defeat the Democratic party in the next Presidential election unless before that time the Democrats in congress or the Democratic congressional committee demonstrate a desire to help give the ballot to women, is the statement made by Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the congressional committee of the association at the headquarters here. There is a distinct attitude of hostility to President Wilson, the Democratic administration and the Democratic party in congress, in the suffrage headquarters.

FIRST TEST ON STARTLING ARE CURRENCY CHARGES OF GRAFT

Democrats Defeat First of Western Fuel Co. Officials Hitchcock Amendments in Severely Arraigned in Federal Court

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—By a vote of forty to thirty-five the senate defeated the first of the amendments offered by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska to the currency bill. The amendment was intended to fix the number of regional reserve banks at four and to require the sale of reserve banks' stock first to the public. Senator Poinsett voted with the Democrats.

The long struggle over currency reform is expected to come to an end in the senate next Saturday. Republican senators probably will come to an understanding today with the majority leaders. The Democrats are desirous to close general debate by Thursday and to devote the remainder of the time to the consideration of amendments to the bill.

Republican critics of the measure probably will demand some changes in it as a condition to giving their consent to a definite time for a vote.

EUCCHARISTIC CONGRESS AT SHRINE OF LOURDES

ROME, Dec. 15.—Announcement was today made at the Vatican that the next of the series of Eucharistic congresses which Pope Pius has inaugurated will be held at the famous shrine of "Our Lady of Lourdes," France, September 9 to 14, 1914. The selection of Lourdes follows the many miraculous cures which are declared to have been effected the past year amongst the pilgrims who visited the shrine.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—Hong Kong, a Chinese arrested at San Diego for alleged smuggling of opium from Mexico into the United States, has "jumped" his $4000 bail, according to information received yesterday by federal officials. The authorities say this is the first case they have ever known where a Chinese has de-camped after friends provided a bond for his liberty.

IMMIGRATION BILL UP TO HOUSE

Burnett Measure is Favorably Reported—Stringently Excludes Asiatics

PUTS UP BARS AGAINST MILITANT SUFFRAGISTS

Shuts Out Sabotage and Anarchy Advocates, and Provides a Literary Test

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The House immigration committee today favorably reported the Burnett immigration bill, accompanied by a stringent provision, barring all Asiatics, militant suffragettes, advocates of sabotage and anarchy. The measure includes a literacy test requiring a aliens to be able to read and write at least one language.

This action will bring the House into the thickest of a fight for immigration reform. The literacy test will reopen debate on the features which led President Taft to veto substantially the same bill last winter. What President Wilson will do if the bill passes both houses and reaches him has not been forecasted by the advocates of the legislation.

Advocates of the exclusion of Asiatics will ardently support that section of the measure, which would reject Japanese, Chinese and Hindus. An amendment adopted last Saturday carrying the exclusion of all aliens who cannot assimilate with Caucasians was urged by the California and Pacific coast delegations.

ISLAND OF CRETE NOW TO GREECE WITH CEREMONY

CANEA, Crete, Dec. 15.—The formal annexation of the island of Crete to Greece was carried out yesterday with imposing ceremonial. King Constantine personally ran up the Hellenic flag over the fort. The same evening a Christmas tree for 500 poor children will be provided at Blanchard hall. In addition to toys, candy and fruit for each child, an order on some department store, either for shoes, stockings or underclothes, will be issued, according to the needs of each child.

The association has invited the public to assist in the work.

BUSINESS MEN'S FIGHT AGAINST R. R.'S RESUMED

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 15.—The fight of the Business Men's League against the Baltimore and Ohio, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Missouri Pacific, the Rock Island, and nearly a score of other roads, on the question of coal rates to St. Louis, was resumed here today before Interstate Commerce Commissioner James B. Harlan. The whole fight centers around a 20-cent arbitrary toll rate on all coal crossing the railroad bridges into St. Louis from East St. Louis. It is possible that the commissioner may also further consider the request of the North Springfield miners for a fifteen-cent cut under "Egypt" based on the alleged class relation of the railroads and the Southern Illinois coal companies.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 15.—The private car of A. H. Smith, newly elected head of the New York Central, was attached to the train wrecked at Wickliffe Saturday night, but none of the occupants were injured, nor were any other passengers on the train. Merigold Bros.' Art Store will be open every evening until Christmas.

DINNER CHATS WITH WALNUT GROWERS

(By J. G. Berneike, M. D.)

With the work of trimming and pruning done, and the brush cleared out of the orchard we must get ready for winter irrigation and some cover crop. There has been quite an interesting discussion concerning cover crops in the California cultivator of late.

The aim in using a cover crop is to restore or increase soil fertility. The cover crop when plowed under supplies humus to the soil, and improves its physical condition, that is to say, makes it mellow. If the leguminous plants have been chosen, which are known as nitrogen gatherers, then we shall also have supplied one of the necessary and expensive plant foods. The idea of using a cover crop to increase the fertility of the soil is not a new one, but its practice here in California is comparatively recent. Everybody has heard of it for the last five or six years. We started out with the Canadian field pea, tried fennugreek and vetches and seemed to settle down to the latter. At present there is some question arising whether we accomplished all the good we were promised, or whether we spend time and money with very little resulting benefit. Observation and experience has led me to certain conclusions which I will mention here.

Nature believes in a cover crop. The falling leaves, the decaying plant parts are part of this provision. The growth of weeds and their decay after maturing are another grand provision. The great variety of weeds is a provision by means of which, in different seasons, one or the other makes a larger growth according as conditions favor. Nature also has its summer and winter cover crops. We, however, generally think of cover crops only as belonging to the rainy season. We might well consider the raising of lima beans in a young orchard during the summer as a summer cover crop.

While it is true we take away the beans and perhaps the straw too, yet the roots and stubble remain, to become part of the soil. But let us consider the winter cover crop. This may be any plant which we find will make a good vigorous growth during the cold season, and mature early enough to be plowed under when it is time to do the plowing. Among the plants we can choose from are the grasses, such as wheat, barley, oats, etc. Among the legumes are the peas, vetches, different varieties of clover, e. g., burr clover, fennugreek, etc. These legumes develop on their roots little nodules or tubercles which, through the action of certain bacteria, gather nitrogen from the air and store it in the soil for plant food. Alfalfa should be mentioned in this class as an all the year round cover crop.

The virtues of the legumes as a cover crop have been extolled so greatly that it seems almost a sacrilege to mention anything else. But I shall take the liberty to do so here. In the first place I believe in a rotation of cover crops. In the second place I believe that those which will make the most vigorous growth in the shortest time are on the whole preferable. Thirdly, I believe that we have neglected some of the best plants California furnishes us for cover crops, and these are to be found among our so-called weeds. Fourthly, I believe a cover crop is not a cover crop if it is plowed under before there is sufficient of woody fibre developed in the stem, or in other words before the plant has come to be nearly mature. In fact, I believe that full maturity is best.

If my observation in a certain orchard is correct, then I should say, by all means rotate your cover crop. In this case for the last four or five years vetches have been sown, and with each year the vetch crop seems to be less. The vetch plants are so few and far between, I would right now cultivate the orchard anew, and sow in barley, rye, or wheat and I would not plow them under until they are in ear.

Personally I like fennugreek as a cover crop because of its erect habit, like alfalfa. It grows well in the winter, is one of the clovers which are so much preferred by eastern farmers as a fertilizer, it makes a hardy stem which I think very desirable (there in differing in opinion from some other growers). To some its strong odor may be objectionable. It is easily plowed under, unlike vetches or burr clover. The latter is an excellent native cover crop which will come up as a volunteer crop year after year, if followed to do so, and will save the grower the price of the seed.

Now as to weeds as a cover crop. Before the rage came for legumes, especially vetches, some growers were wise enough to give the weeds abundant chance to grow in the winter while others would not allow one to spring up if they could help it. They believed in "clean cultivation." Unless they used manure as a substitute they simply robbed their soil of fertility by carrying off the crops and not giving nature a chance to produce a new supply of humus which is used up by the crop and also destroyed by summer cultivation. Under such conditions the best appearing orchard was by no means the best cared for orchard.

Among our native weeds are the mustard and the wild turnip, most vigorous winter growers. A tall stand of these would make a better cover crop twice over than a spindling stand of vetches.

The grower who will be the first to try it out will be laughed at for trying a crop of weeds, but he will find plenty of imitators after a while he has demonstrated the need of this idea.

More about cover crops in my Enough for now.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

With all the uneconomic character of the Christmas rush in trade, one thing is sure, that the enormous business done at holiday time could never be transacted, were not the public becoming accustomed to direct their shopping through the advertising.

In the old days a Christmas shopper started out on her errands with vague ideas of what she wanted and proposed to get. She loitered up and down the store windows and, failing to see what she needed, drifted in and out of various places, pawing over goods until she at last found something that would do.

All this took the time of clerks and obstructed the passage to the counters of those who had more definite ideas. The stores were filled with a lot of undecided people, who took time to make up their minds.

The common procedure in conducting a shopping foray today starts out with newspaper reading. For many weeks previous to Christmas, the newspapers are filled with attractive advertising describing in much detail the holiday offerings. Many merchants do a public service by printing lists of suggestions of gifts for men, for women, for girls, and for boys, giving also range of prices, and here and there bits of useful description.

Thus the rough preliminary work of deciding on gifts is largely done at home. After people have mulled over these notices for a few days, they have a more positive idea of what they want, and they know pretty well where they can get it. They pursue their purpose with some definiteness of aim, and do not waste a lot of time in indecision over the general nature of gifts.

The people who have plenty of money to spend are apt to be persons of forethought who like to plan purchases in advance by studying the newspapers. People of small means find that the advertising contains many tips helping them to make substantial savings.

NEEDHAM A POSSIBILITY

The following item from the Redlands Facts will convey an interesting piece of political news to the readers of the Press:

Former Congressman J. C. Needham, who lived in Modesto, and who was during his lumbering remarkably efficient man, has decided to move to San Diego. No announcement of any political aspirations is prominently mentioned as a candidate for United States senator, and falling in this he would undoubtedly like to go back to congress. And San Diego is strategically a good place for him to live in. All congressional aspirants in this city know that in a general way, and S. C. Evans of Riverside has peculiar information on the subject.

There was talk before the campaign of 1912 opened up that Needham might move to San Diego, but he decided to remain at Modesto and make the race for congress from the eighth district. He went down to defeat in the Democratic landslide, but lost out only by a few votes. If he decides now to take up his residence in San Diego and become a candidate for the house from this district, he will undoubtedly be a strong factor. Judge Sloane of San Diego has been suggested as a Progressive candidate, but it seems doubtful if he would care to leave the bench. Needham would come nearer to being satisfactory to both Progressives and Republicans than most any one who could be suggested. He was opposed to Cannon during the last of his service in the house and gave his warm support to Governor Johnson in the campaign of 1910. His long service on the ways and means committee and his consistent advocacy of protection make him highly acceptable to the fruit growers of Southern California. He has many friends in the counties constituting the Eleventh district, and as the candidate of the Progressives and Republicans would give Kettner a campaign he would remember.—The Riverside Press.

Croup and Cough Remedy

Croup is a terrible disease, it attacks children so suddenly they are very apt to choke unless given the proper remedy at once. There is nothing better in the world than Dr. King's New Discovery. Lewis Chamberlain, of Manchester, Ohio writes about his children: "Sometimes in severe attacks we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup, coughs and colds." So can you. 50c and $1.00. A bottle should be in every home. At all druggists. H. E. Bucklen & Co., Philadelphia or St. Louis.—Advertisement.

THE CITRUS FRUIT INDUSTRY

Department of Service to Citrus Fruit Growers, Conducted Especially for the Register.

Copyrighted by Reginald Brinsmead.

CITRUS BY-PRODUCTS

"Our marmalades are prepared solely from Seville oranges, lemons and the best crushed loaf sugar," is the way one of the big English marmalade manufacturers describes his product. Lacking the Seville, bitter orange, however, the Californian has material available in the Navel oranges, lemon and late varieties of oranges from which most palatable preserves can be made. In the Navel we have a most unique and valuable source of supply, and in combination with the lemon, grape fruit and even small proportions of the bitter orange (where obtainable) excellent products can be made. It is also interesting to note that the same catalogue from which the above quotation was made, lists five different kinds of marmalade: (1) Crystal, clear jelly; (2) Home-made, coarse cut; (3) Lemon, fine cut; (4) Orange, fine cut; (5) Household, for cooking. More detailed descriptions of some of these are given as follows: Crystal marmalade is a clear jelly marmalade, containing small strips of the outside rind of the peel, the white pith being entirely eliminated. Home-made marmalade, the peel is cut in thick strips and the marmalade retains the whole some and natural bitterness of the Seville oranges in a remarkable degree. Orange, fine-cut marmalade, the peel is cut by machinery into very fine shreds and a fine gelatinous consistency is insured by quick boiling in steam jacketed pans.

The retail prices of these marmalades varied from eight cents in the case of household marmalade, to 18 cents in the case of crystal marmalade in one-pound glass jars, seven-pound stone jars being quoted at 47 cents and $1.15 respectively; the prices on the other varieties being about midway between the above quotations.

This factory is typical of many to be found throughout the English fruit-growing districts. Being situated in the country in the midst of a large following table estate also gives the each kind of fruit in which month each fruit is preserved: January, Seville oranges and lemons; May, pineapples and asparagus; June, apricots, green gooseberries, little scarlet strawberries; July, Paxton strawberries, raspberries, red currants, black currants, ruby cherries and red gooseberries; August, Morello cherries, and Green Gage plums and walnuts; October, bullaces; November, quinces, medlars, peaches, figs and cranberries; December, pickled red cabbage. Shipping direct from the farm or factory, only, this concern produces preserves (whole fruit jams), preserves (from imported fruits), partly prepared in the countries where grown, jams, marmalades, preserved fruits in jelly, fruit jellies, fruit cheeses, fresh fruits in light syrup, preserved fruits in thick syrup, fruit syrups and vinegars, bottled fruits without sugar, candied orange peel, pickles the year round. The factory is kept busy the year round.

The increasing diversification of the fruit crops in and around the leading citrus districts and the building of new canneries in these districts clearly points to at least one channel through which much of our citrus cull fruit could be handled. As soon as the citrus grower appreciates the fact that the local cannery can become of value to him in taking care of his cull fruit, and so removing it from the local markets, providing a minor but sure source of revenue, he will become a "cannery booster." The local cannery has of late years not only proved a profitable investment in itself, but also a profitable outlet for local fruit crops. The many by-products of the orange, lemon and grape fruit can all here be handled and no waste would occur where so many channels are at hand for the disposal of the product. The cannery would be made busy the year round; the citrus by-products would have less dead weight to carry and consequently could be placed upon the market at a cheaper competing price. As channel for the distribution of cull and low grade, but sound, fruit suitable for the by-product factory the Los Angeles Home Auction would seem ideal. The collection of cull fruit at the point of manufacture has heretofore frequently presented a difficult problem, one which could be easily solved by co-operation with such an organization as the California Fruit Auction Company.

The small citrus by-product factory, limited as to capital, variety of products and channels of distribution has not to date shown itself to be the logical method of handling our cull fruit. The opening of the Panama Canal with its possibilities of cheap water transportation and influx of labor well adapted to the cannery; the ultimate free entry of sugar, meaning a cheapening of that product to the cannery; the increasing planting and diversification of fruits and products in and around the citrus districts—all these things point to the great future ahead of the cannery and its ultimate value to the citrus industry itself.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENT BOARD TO EMPLOYERS OF THE STATE

Commencing January 1, 1914, employers will be held liable under the Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act for any accidental injuries sustained by employees while at work. The state, through its Compensation Insurance Fund, provided for under the act, has prepared to insure employers against such loss rates at the lowest standard rates. These rates will average from 20 to 40 per cent lower than compensation rates that have hitherto prevailed in California.

Except in the cases where workers themselves are guilty of intoxication or wilful misconduct, the employer, under the law, will be held liable for any injury sustained by his employees by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and also for the death of any such employee if the injury shall proximately cause death. The only exceptions relate to those employees engaged in household domestic service or in the various forms of agriculture.

After paying losses, operating expenses, setting aside required reserves and a moderate percentage to build up a surplus to meet possible catastrophe losses, the balance, if any, will be in the nature of a profit, that, in the case of stock companies, would be paid to the stockholders in dividends, but in the case of the State Insurance Fund, it is the intention of the Industrial Accident Commission to have the policy holders reap the benefit thereof.

This makes the State Insurance Fund practically a mutual company. It, therefore, makes it to the interest of employers to give the state fund every preference and support. The "Fund" has been organized with the same care exercised in organizing private undertakings. Insurance experts have been chosen purely on merit regardless of political faith. Employers will, therefore, have every right to expect that the "Fund" will be conducted in accordance with the highest business principles, giving its policy holders the most perfect protection at the lowest cost.

The fact of an employer holding an unlimited policy in the State Compensation Insurance Fund, whatever may be its reserve, will, in the event of an accident to any of his workmen, no matter what may be the cost, at once relieve the employer of any expense in the way of medical aid or compensation. The entire burden will be assumed by the "Fund" and the injured workmen will receive the best medical services and every penny of compensation to which, under the law, they may be entitled. In the event of a catastrophe loss wiping out the reserve of the State Fund, however large or small such reserve may be, the employer is, in any event, relieved of any liability, and it is not conceivable that the great state of California would permit the injured coming under its policies to suffer the loss of compensation. This feeling should afford employers insuring with the state as policy holders, as well as their workmen, a peace of mind in itself worthy of every consideration.

The new law goes into effect January 1, 1914. This means that many thousands of California employers will want immediate insurance protection; it also means a great rush of applications for insurance on the part of employers on or about that date. In order, therefore, to be fully protected when the law goes into effect, it is important that employers should make prompt application to the State Compensation Insurance Fund at its headquarters, 525 Market street, San Francisco.

In making such application the employer takes no risk in the matter of rates, since the state board will issue policies at the lowest possible rates established by standard companies for the state of California.

FOREST NOTES

Twenty states have published reports of their wood-using industries. A good grade of excelsior is being made from fire-killed Alpine fir and Engelmann spruce in Colorado.

It is predicted that western yellow pine will furnish an excellent source of turpentine as the southern pine becomes exhausted. While there are five hemlocks in the United States, only two are of any commercial importance, common hemlock and western hemlock. Of these two, western hemlock makes the better lumber.

The Philippine bureau of forestry uses a launch for services between islands. The United States forest service employs several, both on inland lakes and in salt water, in Alaska and Florida.

Trunk manufacturers in Colorado are abandoning the usual basswood and cottonwood for the trunk box, and are turning to Engelmann spruce, which combines lightness, strength and ease of working.

START BROOM CORN ON MESA

This Proposal Made in Order to Get Factory Material Here

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 15.—Quite a number of farmers in this section of the country are enthused over the idea of growing broom corn with which to supply the Van Winkle broom factory, at this place. There is evident dissatisfaction over the fact that the broom makers have heretofore shipped in all of the corn whisks used at the factory, from the broom corn districts of Illinois, the price being about $150 per ton, and the freight rates correspondingly high.

Many of the farmers hereabouts are of the belief that they can produce a grade of whisks which will satisfy the broom makers, but the broom men declare that such a thing would be next to an impossibility. Van Winkle, manager of the factory, argues that there are two things unfavorable to broom corn cultivation in this vicinity: Firstly, the ground is too valuable to be used for the production of broom corn, and secondly, broom corn has always had a reputation of making too rank a growth wherever it has been given a try-out in this state. Rank broom straw, it is claimed, makes too coarse a broom, and is consequently put out of the running by the high-class broom straw produced in some parts of Illinois.

Farmers and real estate men at this place, however, are of the opinion that the mesa land around here, many acres of which produce nothing unless it be a little barley hay, would grow a variety of broom corn that would pass muster with the sweeper makers. It is still further claimed that the mesa land hereabouts, which will not be brought under intensive cultivation for several years yet, at least, would be enriching its owners if it produced a ton and a half of broom straw per acre—an estimate which seems to be placed plenty low enough. Such a product at $100 a ton, would be profitable to the grower, and at the same time would cut down the present cost of broom straw in this section at least 3-1-3 per cent.

The Huntington Beach Board of Trade, as well as a number of progressive farmers in this vicinity, has manifested great interest in the idea of Huntington Beach producing the material with which to run her own factory, so it is not entirely unlikely that several small patches of broom corn, at least, will be planted here next spring, for the purpose of giving the crop an opportunity to demonstrate whether or not it can be profitably produced in Southern California.

Indeed the flowers were used throughout the house. The centerpiece of the tables where the guests were entertained at a delicious four-course repast after the afternoon was well spent in congenial chat and the fascinating employment of pretty needlework, were masses of the brilliantly colored flowers on mirrors.

FOUR HOURS $20 WAITED FOR OWNER

A $20 bill lay on the street in Santa Ana for four hours last Saturday, and nobody picked it up.

When prosperity hits a community that nobody wants a $20 bill—that is prosperity with a vengeance.

It happened this way. Blaine Cox, son of Justice Cox, received $30 from his employer, Raymond Ross, and walked down the street. In some manner the piece of paper money was lost. Four hours later Cox missed it, and he straightway began retracing his steps, and he found the money.

Music and the Drama

By Beau Rialto
(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The cordial interchange of things theatrical, both actors and plays, between New York and London, which has characterized Broadway's 1912-1914 season by an unprecedented international aspect, is to be further emphasized. Two London plays with full English casts are to be produced here this month.

Winthrop Ames at the Little theater will put on George Bernard Shaw's "The Philanderer," with a cast of English players selected by the author. It will have its New York premiere in Christmas week. The Shuberts have arranged for the transfer from London to New York of "The Girl on the Film," a variety theater hit. Broadway has from time to time seen sections of the famous variety company, but never before was an entire musical comedy and cast transferred to New York. The American production of "The Girl on the Film" will be the same in every detail as George Edward's London show. The Gaiety girls are the most famous show girls and chorus girls in England. Many of them have married into the British peerage and several of them are now said to be engaged to young lords of high degree.

Louis Mann, at the Harris in "Children of Today," presents a curious anomaly. The audience laughs all the way through the piece, and at the end wonders why. The only possible explanation is that Louis Mann is perhaps the ablest American comedian on the stage today and can make of a million men who play the game at least once a week spend $6,250,000 for club subscriptions, $6,250,000 for golf balls, $12,500,000 for caddies, $625,000 for clubs, and $250,000 for green fees.

HE HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH ON RAILS

POMONA, Dec. 15.—Dangling from a hand-rail of the chair coach until he lost his grip and fell, only to be thrown out of death's grip by the trucks of the next coach, was the experience today of P. J. Dreher, director of the Southern California Fruit Exchange. Leaving here to attend a directors' meeting in Los Angeles, the Pacific Express, which he attempted to board, had attained a fair rate of speed when he reached the station. He seized the handrail and clung on until he fell.

BOYS LOST THE GAME, GIRLS WIN

Basketball Matches Against Huntington Beach Played Saturday

[By Bruce Wallace]
From the results of Saturday's basketball games one would judge that women should be granted the ballot without question. The girls piled up a score of 18 to 2 against the Huntington Beach team, while the best the boys could do was to accept the short end of an 18 to 38 defeat at the hands of the Huntington Beach boys. At the very opening of the season when Santa Ana had only a week of practice the Huntington Beach girls won the first game of the series by a very small score and immediately declared that the county championship question was settled. Since that time Orange has upset the beach team and now the defeat handed them by Santa Ana puts them hopelessly out of the race. Orange, however, won their game by a mighty slim margin so the walkover by the cardinal and white would seem to indicate that the penant will come back to Santa Ana again this year.

Miss Souders was especially well pleased with the game that has boosted Santa Ana right up to the top of the championship ladder. She has developed a style of team play that is the most important factor of the local success.

It is a hard proposition to pick the star of Saturday's game. The entire team played fast, strong games and did not slow down in the least even after the game was won. The girls played a much faster game than their opponents, who were forced to admit that the locals played rings around them.

The visitors did not throw a single goal from the field during the whole game, their two points being awarded for successful free throws.

The team was greatly strengthened by the return of Ruth Visei at forward and Elsie Lutz at running center. The former fitted in well with Isabel Anderson and both showed exceptional basketball ability. Last year's captain made a strong running mate for Irene Jacques, both playing star games. The guards, Rowena Coffey and Mary Anderson, did not allow a single goal by the Huntington Beach team. Their guarding was especially good and their passing accurate.

The girls will have a long rest during vacation and then promise to return and finish up the season without another defeat. They have a mighty good chance at the honor of bringing the first championship to the new high school.

Huntington Beach got their sweet revenge in the boys' game. Their game was characterized by sensation at basket shooting, although their team work was, by no means, inferior. However, the most noticeable feature of their play was their roughness. Their playing was not exactly crooked but they showed an exceptional knowledge of the art of getting their elbows and knees in somebody else's stomach. Umpire Clarence Beebe of Anaheim ordered one beacher, who appeared unable to control his elbows, from the game. The game was the roughest that has ever been seen on the high school grounds.

Although the boys have not won a game this year they have started a spirit that will put Santa Ana on the back of the map to stay in a year or so. Santa Ana will lose only two players this year through graduation, Swift and Jayne. Captain Plavan has one more year, and Thompson, the new star forward, will continue to shine for two more years. Paul Plavan, Martinez, Dyer and Hill are all freshmen who have the right idea about athletics—"begin early." It takes several years to develop a team of any kind. Now just wait until these freshmen grow up, and see if we can't truly say that "the scorp of the enemy are hanging in the camp of the crimson warriors."

A good crowd from Huntington Beach came up to see the games. Santa Ana lined up: E. Plavan (capt.), Thompson, forwards; Swift, center; Jayne, P. Plavan, Martinez, guards.

The Orange County Debating Team is working hard this vacation. Estelle Nisson, Louise Grubb, Donald Stevenson and Stanley Mansur will represent the high school in the contest, the judges selected a very capable team to meet Fullerton and Huntington Beach. Santa Ana Painless Dentists, 102 1/2 East Fourth St. Main 253

Bruce Wallace, the lanky kicker of the Santa Ana second team, made a good showing at the Football Carnival staged by Occidental College at Haer Field last Saturday. The best kickers of the south in American football and rugby contested in the various events. In the place kicking at 25, 35 and 40 yards, three tries at each distance, Wallace carried off the gold medal with five out of a possible nine kicks.

In punting he was second with an average distance of 45 yards and 3 inches out of five tries. First place went to Davidson of San Diego at 48 1/2 yards. Davidson will be remembered by local fans as the kicker of the San Diego team who got his team out of danger many times against the local team by his long punts.

"Little Spud" Morrison and Joe Irvine who were also taken by Coach Ratcliff to represent Santa Ana at the Carnival showed up well in kicking and forward passing but failed to get within the money.

The football season which was supposed to have closed on Thanksgiving Day has been extended to Christmas when the alumni will meet the regulars of this year's team.

Handsome Residences to Be Built at San Juan Capistrano

One for John O. Forster and One for Miss Blanch Dolph

The valley of the San Juan Capistrano mission is to have two handsome new residences, one to be built by John O. Forster and the other by Miss Blanch Dolph of Arch Beach. That is not strictly true, for Miss Dolph's residence is to be built on the rocky coast near the mouth of the canyon.

The mission valley seems likely to soon become famous for its fine country residences. Two, built two years ago by Frank Forster and Cornelio Echenisque, have attracted much attention.

Concerning the proposed new residences the Times yesterday said:

An elevated site, a magnificent panorama of mountain, valley and ocean and the near proximity of the old San Juan mission all contribute to make the setting of the beautiful home to be erected by John Forster at San Juan Capistrano an ideal one. The immediate grounds of the place thirty acres in extent, are a part of the historic old Forster ranch, which was the domain of the late Don Marcus Forster, an early Californian and Southland pioneer.

The Forster house will follow the mission style of architecture, many of the details being adapted from the nearby mission ruins. Arthur B. Benton, a designer of many of the finest structures in this style in Southern California, is the architect.

The dwelling will be of reinforced concrete construction and fireproof. The main house will be 86x39 feet in size, the kitchen wing being 26x39 feet. The roof will be of mission tile. One of the charming features will be a patio measuring 68x30 feet in dimensions and surrounded by pergolas.

The first floor will be 12x30 feet and will contain a circular stairway to the carried upward through a bay overlooking the entire country around. The living-room will be 20x32 feet, the sun parlor 10x27 feet and the dining room 18x20 feet. Other first floor rooms will be a den, breakfast-room, kitchen and maid's room. The owner's suite on the second story will contain a bedroom, dressing-room, sun parlor and bath. Two guest rooms each have dressing-room and bath. The principal exterior features will be an arched pergola porch across the front of the house and an outlook tower.

Overlooking the Sea

In the house planned by Albert R. Walker and John T. Vawter for Miss Blanch Dolph is to be seen a picturesque, free and rambling treatment that is characterized and made distinctive by its very informality. Some of the details suggest the Italian Renaissance, but even this hint of "style" is to be found only in the details; the dwelling itself being notably a product of individuality. The house, like that planned by Mr. Benton, will be of reinforced concrete construction, and will have a roof of red clay tile.

The Dolph place will occupy a ten-acre site on bluffs overlooking the ocean and lying to the south of San Juan Capistrano proper. The elevation is such that the house will command a superb view of all the valley back of the mission. It is one of the most charming portions of the American Riviera.

The house will contain fourteen rooms and will be 100x80 feet in size. The main feature of the plan is an open court sixty-five feet square into which all the principal rooms will open. This court will face to the south. The interior of the dwelling is to be finished in hard woods, and most of the rooms will have unusually high paneling.

The grounds immediately surrounding the house are to be laid out in gardens, with contour walks and drives. The site presents an interesting variety of levels and is well wooded.

Holiday Suggestions Both Pertinent and Patriotic

When sending Christmas greetings to your Eastern friends, why not accompany them with a copy of the Register's "Orange County Quarter Centennial Edition?"

Nothing of equal cost would be more appreciated, or do more good.

It would carry into the Eastern home in the "dead of winter" a breath of the soft, sweet air of Orange County and a ray of our bright warm sunshine.

And incidentally it would be a big long boost for Orange County.

And it would be "different"—something new and unique in the way of a "Christmas Remembrance."

It's easy to mail, inexpensive, beautiful and useful.

Of course, if you are sending a Christmas box you can put one of these beautiful books in the bottom of it—it will be a present to every member of the family, and one that will give delight to the whole family connection and the whole neighborhood.

The price is only 25c and it costs only 8c postage if sent independently.

You can get these books, wrapped ready for mailing at the Register office, and they are on sale at the following places:

NAME IS MISLEADING, AND "GIRL OF THE UNDERWORLD" GOT BY CENSOR COMMITTEE

"A Girl of the Underworld" has come and gone, and affairs in local theatrical and theatrical circles—no mention the censor committee—will again resume the even tenor of their way. That same even tenor has been sadly disrupted for some days past. Some of the ministers found the title, "A Girl of the Underworld," too shocking for words, and forthwith one or two of them evidently organized a siege of the members of the censor committee, and demanded that the play be prohibited forthwith from appearing here. The name sounded a bit suspicious to the censor committee, too, which, while ready to take any necessary action, declined to make any attempts to stop the play without some definite information as to the nature of it, and on top of that came Manager McCulloch's assurance that the play was not objectionable.

The play was to appear at Oxnard Friday night. A telephone message was sent to the Oxnard city marshal, urging him to attend the play, and send to the local censor committee a round, unvarnished tale of its propriety or impropriety. The city marshal of Oxnard went; not wishing to trust so momentous an affair entirely to his own judgment, he interviewed several of the leading moral lights of Oxnard, and the consensus of opinion was that, far from being naughty, the "Girl of the Underworld" pointed a moral, even if it did not particularly adorn a tale. Oxnard's official opinion was telephoned to Santa Ana, and the censor committee drew a breath of relief, and later viewed the play as the guests of Manager McCulloch.

What they saw was a genuine, old-fashioned Saturday night melodrama, better handled, by a more skillful company, than usually falls to the lot of Saturday night melodramas.

There was the usual beautiful, unsophisticated country girl who went to seek her fortune in the wicked city. There was the usual fascinating, gentlemanly-appearing villain, who promised her matrimony, but whose matrimonial intentions were more remote than honorable. The patriarchal, simple-minded old father was there, and the comedy step-sister. They all did the conventional melodramatic thing, in the most conventionally melodramatic style. The old father and the comedy step-sister said "Gosh" whenever they felt real emotional, and once or twice the villain, said something stronger. The villain ate a breakfast of coffee and eggs—not properly eggs, but the real thing, for a most appetizing odor floated out over the footlights—clad in his pajamas and bathrobe. Pajamas are very unlavely, but not positively immoral, so the censor committee let them pass. There was not a bit of rough comedy, not a suggestive remark or gesture in the whole play.

Oh, yes, in the advertisements, there was a picture, too—a girl perched rakishly upon the corner of a table, smoking a cigarette. That picture was misleading. The villain smoked numerous cigarettes—he couldn't be a sure-enough villain if he didn't—but there were no cigarettes smoked by the women. Indeed, the poor, deluded heroine pointedly informs the villain that she doesn't smoke. That's why you no longer love me, Jim," she informs him in tearful accents. "The women of your world drink and smoke—but I can't—and I won't!" For which noble sentiment she was warmly applauded, and one hoary-headed patriarch down in front said "Good!" right out loud in meeting, just as he'd have said "Amen" if he had been in church.

You finally behold the little country girl paying in bitter sorrow for her folly. She is going home with the tottering old father—and yod feel sure that there is a ray of hope even for the villain, who has been brought to see the error of his ways. Perhaps it wasn't so much his fault that he was the villain, after all, for he never had a home or a mother—and as the last curtain goes down, he stands lonesomely on the stage, his eyes tragically turned to the gallery, while he slowly and impressively informs you that "The right road is the road that's on the level."

All of which little tempest in a teapot goes to show that, the immortal William to the contrary notwithstanding, there is something in a name, and although as sweet, still, if you doubt especially in roses, you wouldn't advertise your specialty as carrots. And if Saturday night's play had been labeled "Back to the Farm," or "A Father's Love," or something equally appropriate and conventional, several local ministers would have been saved much worry, the souls of the members of the censor committee would not have been harrowed up, the city marshal of Oxnard might have spent Friday evening quietly at home in the bosom of his family, and the city of Santa Ana would have been spared the expense of two telephone calls to Oxnard.

So "A Girl of the Underworld" passed through Santa Ana uninterupted. No, not exactly that either, for several times the performance was stopped, not by the censor committee but by the prolonged peals of that habitue of the theater known as Laughing Bill. He succeeded in wrecking one of the most tragic scenes the stage of the Grand has ever known.

Reform Association Secretary Preached A Masterly Sermon

The mass meeting of the churches of the city held in the First Methodist Episcopal church last night was a success in every way. The audience packed every available seat in the large auditorium and many were turned away. The ministers of the city occupied the rostrum. Rev. W. L. C. Samson, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, presided. After the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers" by the chorists and audience, and prayer by Rev. O. S. Russell, pastor of the First Baptist church, the speaker, Dr. James S. McGaw of Pittsburg, Pa., general field secretary of the National Reform Association, was introduced. He spoke on "The Bible in Our Public Schools" and held the closest attention of his audience from the beginning to the close of his masterly address, and was frequently greeted with applause. He said in part:

"The battle today for the maintenance of our Christian institutions on American soil is the secular democracy versus the Christian democracy. The secular democracy is represented in the various organizations which in one way and another are seeking to banish from our national life all the Christian laws, institutions and usages which are the expression and safeguard of our national religion, as well as the hope of our national perpetuity. This secular democracy is today leagued and working day and night. Over against it stands the awakening Christian democracy, represented in this audience tonight, and the ever growing host of American Christian patriots who realize our national danger and are forming a solid phalanx to meet it. Many methods are employed by the secularists to banish the Bible from the public schools."

"But for the most part the basis of the action in California is the interpretation rendered by Attorney General U. S. Webb in 1903. This interpretation is founded on two flagrant fundamental errors. The first is that the reading of the King James version of the Bible as religious exercises, or its use as a text book in the public schools is prohibited by the constitution and the laws of the state.

"The second error is that Christianity is not a part of the laws of the state or of the United States. Both of these we will answer in the general discussion.

"Most of the argument for the exclusion of the Bible from the public schools is based on at least five fundamental errors.

"1. The state is secular and has nothing to do with religion but to leave it alone. This is a direct contradiction of the Word of God. The Book expressly declares that God made the nations. Deut. 26:19; Psalms 80:9, Acts 17:24-26 teach that God has made of one blood all nations, has determined their appointed seasons and has set the bounds of their habitation. God not only made America but he has meted out to us every inch of soil over which the Stars and Stripes float. The word further declares that the nations of the earth were placed under the dominion of the Lord Jesus Christ, the King of Kings and the Lord of Lords, Psalm 2:8. In Matthew 28:18 it is expressly declared that all rightful authority in heaven and in earth is given unto the Lord Jesus Christ. His authority over the empires of this world furnishes the background of the great Gospel commission. In Romans 13:1-7 is revealed the true foundation of law and order in civil government. Let every soul be subject to the higher powers, for the powers that be are ordained of God. Subjection to civil authority is based upon the fact that government is a divine institution and the civil officer is a minister of God for good to the people. For this reason we are to pay taxes for the support of civil institutions, obey the laws and give honor to the magistrate.

"The doctrine that the state is secular contradicts the history and experience of all nations. Cicero said that religion inheres in the very nature of the commonwealth. There is not a purely secular nation on the face of the earth. It is not in the power of secularism to produce a republic like ours. Nations do not make religions but the religions make the nations.

"It is the religion of a people that dominates the thought, moulds the sentiment, creates the ideals, laws and institutions, furnishes the cohesion, produces the homogeneity, constitutes the genius, expresses the character and differentiates that nation from all others. Confucianism produced China, which remained in mental, moral and spiritual stagnation until the Gospel of Jesus Christ struck the empire and gave us new China. Just as soon as China changed her religion she was bound to change her form of government. Buddhism produced India, the land of degradation and sorrow. Mohammedanism produced Turkey, the land of despotism and the sword. Every page of our history declares that the open Bible placed in the hands of the people, the Christianity which it teaches is the secret of this great empire we call the American republic.

"The secular theory is decidedly un-American and the American people repudiate it at every turn from the Mayflower compact to the last case tried in the magistrate's court this morning. In spite of the attorney general's declaration, Christianity is woven into the whole warp and woof of our national life. It is written in the colonial documents, the Declaration of Independence, the resolutions and declarations of Congress, the messages and papers of our presidents and governors, the constitutions of most of the states in the Union, including California, and many decisions of the federal and state courts. It is expressed in the establishment of California in our public institutions, the civil oath, the days of thanksgiving called by the governors of the states and the President of the United States, and is imbedded in statute laws, and stamped upon our coins. The vital unwritten constitution of the United States is Christian. It has been decided in a number of the state courts that Christianity is part of the common law of the land. Summing up the whole question is the decision of the supreme court of the United States in 1893. After reviewing the whole of the foregoing, the supreme court decided: 'These and many other matters which might be noticed, add a volume of unofficial declarations to the mass of organic utterance that this is A CHRISTIAN NATION.'

"The second fundamental error presented is that the Bible in the schools would be a union of church and state. As Americans we all stand opposed to the union of church and state. But the divorce of church and state is a vastly different thing from the divorce of the state from the religion which produced it. The family should have a religion if there were not a church in existence. America has a national religion without an established church. As divine institutions the church and the state, each in its own sphere, receive their authority from God and are not only responsible for the execution of His law, but owe Him the homage and worship due to Him as Creator, Preserver, Ruler and Lawgiver. Like two brothers in the one home, obedient to the authority of the father but neither dictating or interfering with the other, so stand state and church in America. The disunion of church and state was the direct result of an open Bible, and the surest hope of the continued divorcement is an open Bible in every church and every public school.

"Another claim sometimes presented by the secularist is that the church alone has the right to teach religion. That doctrine took the Bible from the family and the laity and is now used to take it from the state. It is based upon the other false doctrine that denied the rights of private interpretation of the scriptures which precipitated the dark ages. The Bible is not an ecclesiastical book. It is God's revelation to the whole race, a manual of life for mankind in all its relationships. It has its portions for the individual, the family, the church, the business world, social life, and more than one-third of it is God's explicit declaration to nations. The state has the right to acknowledge that portion of the Bible as its standard of ethics. It has further the right to teach it without the mediation of any church. These rights imply and enforce the duty of the state to teach it not only for its own self-preservation, but to fulfill its responsibilities to those under its care. The moment the American republic lets those rights slip she has dug her own grave and rung the death knell of her liberties.

"The fourth objection presented is that the Bible is a sectarian book, and its use breeds sectarianism. Who says so? The infidel. But he must be ruled out of the discussion. This is not an infidel country. The Jew says so. But this is not a Jewish country. The Roman Catholic says so. But this is not a Catholic country. This is a Christian nation; the Bible has produced it and cannot be said to be a sectarian book. This has been decided by a number of our courts, notably that decision rendered by the Bracken circuit court of Kentucky, in which it was declared that the Bible is not a sectarian book, the reading of it without note or comment is not sectarian instruction, the use of the Bible does not make the school house a house of religious worship and any particular edition of the Bible cannot be said to be sectarian because it has been adopted by a church. The King James version of the Bible, to which objection is made by the attorney general, has been in use by the United States government in the administration of the oath and other ways for over one hundred years. There is but one Bible. Facing the scholarship of the world, no church dare present an edition that was not a close rendition of the original text. The Bible through the ages has been the light and guide and champion of democracy. It has always been the foe of sectarianism and sectionalism. It is the greatest force the world knows to abolish class and caste. The state can employ the Bible without becoming sectarian as certainly as the church can uphold civil government without becoming partisan. The Bible furnished the instruction and inspiration that wrote into our Declaration of Independence the statement that all men are created free and equal. This marked an epoch in the world's history. The only hope of conserving democracy on the basis of human equality is to hold the Bible in every school room.

"The last plea for no Bible in the public schools which we will mention is that its use is unfair to those who are opposed. Briefly, this is minority rule. A form of the Polish 'liberum veto' which paralyzed a government and destroyed a nation. 'Rights of conscience' on American soil does not give the license to uniting in those which are proved for the welfare of society. It gives no one the right to tear down the foundation on which rests the stability of the Republic. The state has rights which every individual is bound to respect. It has the right to use the best method to protect itself against the vicious, lawless and anarchist. No better means has yet been discovered than the inculcation of the Word of God. It takes an infidel or an atheist to make an anarchist. We put a Bible in the hands of the criminal when he is locked behind prison bars, but better a thousand times to have Christian instruction in the public schools. This right of the state for her own preservation, for the conservation of her own genius, and highest welfare, must not be surrendered to any individual or set of individuals. For any man or organization to demand or declare that the children of Christian America shall not receive Christian instruction in the public schools of the commonwealth is a form of inquisition which true Americans ought not to endure.

LOS ANGELES PRODUCE MARKET

Three cars of Oregon fruit pulled in to Los Angeles yesterday morning and are the first Christmas trees on the market. They are all healthy, hardy trees and average about $1.50 each all through the consignment. The prices have a wide range and run anywhere from 50 cents to $8. Many of the commission houses are handling them.

The matter of selling oranges that are sweated or unnaturally colored has been made a very strong feature of the citrus trade at this time. The new state law requires that no fruit that is picked green from the trees and artificially ripened can be shipped unless individually wrapped and each wrapper is stamped in letters of not less than one inch in height to the effect that this has been done. So far the health officers have been unable to find any dealers who are selling unripe oranges.

The market on eggs was very steady yesterday morning. Receipts were 119 cases. The San Francisco market was steady at 45¢ while in New York the quotations have moved up to 42 cents. Chicago maintains the lowest prices of any large city, quoting at 31¢ on candled.

OUR WEEKLY SERMON

Preached by Rev. Fred Staff at the Congregational Church, at the Sunday Morning Service, December 14, 1913.

KEYS TO THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN

"And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven."—Mat. 16:19.

I shall not enter into the fruitless ecclesiastical controversies that have raged around these words. I shall not even take time this morning to express my own interpretation of them. The words suggest to me a practical truth which touches human life at every point in many common relations, and it is this truth which I now wish to illustrate and emphasize.

Let me state this truth in a nutshell. Every man or woman possesses powers, capacities and influences by means of which they may open for themselves and for those with whom they are intimately associated the kingdom of heaven or the kingdom of hell.

I think of this truth when uttering the words which according to the teaching of Jesus make of a man and a woman not two but one flesh. It has seemed to me often as if I must say to the happy bridegroom, "Behold, I give unto you the keys to the kingdom of heaven for this woman;" and to the bride, "I give unto you the keys to the kingdom of heaven for this man." And if they do no by love and sympathetic forbearance open for each other the kingdom of heaven, be sure that the kingdom or the condition of hell will open for them both of its own accord. If you think this statement exaggerated, spend a month in a divorce court and see for yourself before you express an opinion. I have been in homes in which I heard divine music and the rustle of angels' wings and saw pictures such as the old Masters painted of the Holy Family; and I have been in homes where for the sake of self-preservation I walked softly because the crust between the floor and the inferno was so thin that I feared it might break. At times it required only a word or a glance to crack it.

For a man to live half a century with the same woman on the terms of intimacy which the marriage relation implies is a very serious matter. For a woman to live thus with a man is more serious still. The sentimental love generated at social functions where both wear their best clothes and their best manners is not equal to the strain. Love to endure must be founded on mutual respect and reinforced with adoliness. There must be a spirit of sacrifice, a spirit of forgiveness and of forbearance. There must be purity, truth and holiness if there shall be perfect and enduring happiness.

Consider in the next place the relation of fathers and mothers to their children—and, by the way, home is not really complete till there is or has been a child in it. How different the theology of the church would have been if it had not been so largely influenced by monks and priests who were nothing but old bachelors. It takes a child to teach man the meaning of the Fatherhood of God. But don't forget what the responsibility of parenthood means. Fathers and mothers, I give unto you the keys to the kingdom of heaven for your children. What you bind on earth with your carelessness, your worldliness and your self-indulgence shall be bound in heaven, and what you loose on earth through a life of sympathetic love, reverence, devotion to truth and righteousness, Christian training and kindly discipline may be loosed when earth shall be no more.

Next to the home comes the church. In very truth the keys to the kingdom of heaven are given to the church. But these keys cannot be turned in their locks by sacramental magic or by the mumbled formulas or prayers or absolutions of bishops, priests or ministers. Jesus himself could not use these keys except by giving his life. As applied to him the law of human redemption demanded denial of self, service and vicarious sacrifice. It demands the same thing of His church. The kingdom of God cannot be opened for the human race by sending to China, India or Africa a few missionaries to preach there a gospel that is not practiced in America or Europe.

I have heard revivalists shouting themselves hoarse urging men and women to come up and testify. "Tell what Jesus Christ has done for your souls," they say. But the testimony which the world needs most of all is not the kind usually given at revival meetings. The testimony which might convert the world is more like that given by the Publican in the presence of Jesus: "If I have taken anything from any man by false accusation (including unjust and unfair methods) I restore to him fourfold. There would be a lot of money changing hands if all who bear the Christian name should confess like that! But it would have a mighty influence in Christianizing the world.

Our first aim and effort should not be the enlargement of our churches and the improvement of ecclesiastical organization but the charging of both the church and the world with the dynamic power of essential Christianity. This requires the recognition of two very important facts:

First, we must recognize that there are extra-ecclesiastical forces and movements at work in the world today which, so far as they aim at improving the conditions of human life, aim also at the opening of the Kingdom of God. When these forces are misdirected through the influence of foolish, ignorant and misguided men it is our business not to condemn only, but more particularly to direct and spiritualize them. Let us beware lest like the overzealous disciples of old we prohibit men from casting out devils on the ground that these men do not follow us.

I have not time to more than mention some of these forces. There are the schools, erroneously called Godless by some people, because the Bible is not read in them; but the schools will never be Godless as long as Godly men and women manage and teach in them. Then there is the library and the public press with a power to unbind and loosen the ignorant and the oppressed that cannot be overestimated, if it were enlisted on the side of righteousness. There are the philanthropic, the civic and even the political organizations which aim at establishing a better and freer order among men. I see no reason why Jesus Christ should not dominate all these things. If you know of any valid reason why a political convention should not be as holy as a church meeting I wish you would tell me.

These statements suggest the second important fact which we must recognize. The priestly responsibility, responsibility and dignity of every man and woman. The duty of ministers to live a holy life cannot be overemphasized. The responsibility of church members to back up their profession by their works must be repeated over and over again. But when all has been said it remains true that neither ordination to the ministry nor membership in a church creates any Christian duties or responsibilities that did not exist before. I say to you who are not members of the church: Demand of ministers and deacons and church members the highest degree of Christlikeness to which men can possibly attain; and I say to you likewise that you have no right to be satisfied with anything less in yourselves. I say to you whatever your business

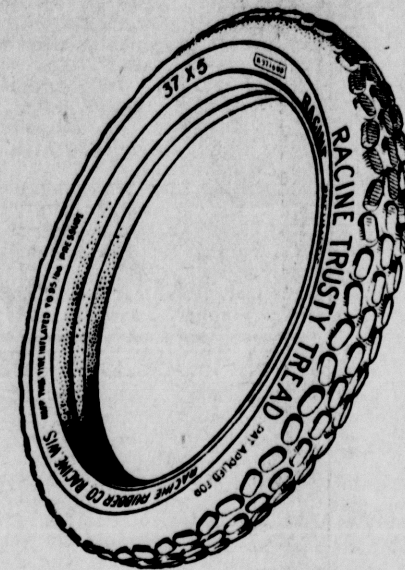

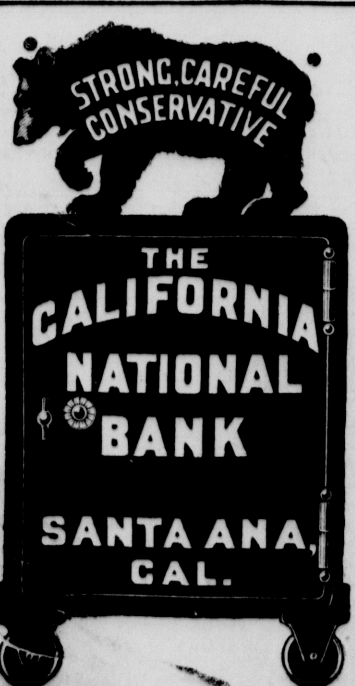

Mr. Scholarly—"Look at all the inventions that are mentioned in these scientific magazines, and to think that no one has invented something to make washing easier! My wife's all fagged out because she washed this morning."

Anty Drudge—"Mr. Scholarly, there are some inventions that are not recorded in scientific magazines, but which are more useful than those which are. Get your wife some Fels-Naptha Soap to use when she washes, and she'll tell you that it's the finest thing ever invented to help women with their work."

The Fels-Naptha way of washing in cool or lukewarm water makes your clothes fresher, cleaner and sweeter than if you hard-rubbed and boiled them till Doomsday. It is much easier than any other way, because there is no need to keep up a hot fire and no lifting of heavy pails of water to fill the washboiler. Nothing but soaking in cool or lukewarm water with Fels-Naptha Soap, a light rub with the hands or on a board, rinsing and hanging out.

Follow the directions on the Red and Green Wrapper. Better buy Fels-Naptha by the box or carton.

and whatever your social position may be, you are a priest for some one, perhaps for many. In your heart and in your brain, in your pen, in your power and influence you carry keys that will loose or bind. Think of a man who by one stroke of his pen can plunge a continent into brutal war, who can lower the wages of millions, who can manipulate the market so as to levy a tax on daily bread—what were Peter's keys in comparison with the pen of a man like that?

Proclaim it from the house-tops that the president of a railway, the writer of a book, the manager of a theater, the teacher of a school, the father of a family, the leader of a political party, the superintendent of a factory—they are all either binding or loosing their fellow men and they are all responsible to God for the use of their power, and that some day they will be called to account.
